

 WINE LIST

Thrace is a region covering the southeastern part of the Balkan Peninsula, including the territories of Northern Greece, Southern Bulgaria and the European part of Turkey. This is the land of the Thracians, who inhabited these territories at least from the 5th millennium BC. In present days Bulgarians are considered to be the heirs of the ancient Thracians. From ancient times growing grape vines and making wine were part of the Thracian identity: Thracian wine was made in stone troughs and it was so dense that, according to some legends, it had to be drunk with straws straight from the stone troughs. Thracian priests were using the wine in their sacred rituals as a means of predicting the future and connecting with the afterlife. They are believed to have been the first people to worship the God of wine Zagreus, later adopted by the Greeks as Dionysus and by the Romans as Bacchus.

Pomorie (in ancient times Anhiolo) has been famous for its vineyards and wine production since ancient times. During the Second Bulgarian Kingdom, the famous Anhiolo wine became established brand, a symbol of high quality and the city positioned itself as a preferred producer of quality white and red wines. In 1932 the first modern wine cellar "Pomorie" was established, which is included in the structure of one of the most famous wine producers in Bulgaria - "Black Sea Gold" – awarded over the years on a number of national and international prestigious competitions and festivals.*
